Pilots Call P-80 An Obsolete Plane

DETROIT. — Air Force pilots at Selfridge Field, Michigan, complained that the jet-propelled "Shooting Star" isn't fast enough to fight the new bombing planes.

They revealed that in recent air maneuvers, a P-80 "Shooting Star" fighter group was unable to intercept a flight of B-29's only 150 miles away.

Pilots of the planes were even more vigorous in their comments. Capt. James B. Raebel, a World War II veteran, declared the Shooting Star is now "obsolete," and that new, conventionally powered bombers are so "souped-up" that the P-80 pilot can attack them only with difficulty.

Another pilot, Major Stuart B. McLeod, explained:

"The P-80 has a terrific speed near the ground—about 580 miles an hour without vibrating to pieces.

"But that vibration comes on much sooner upstairs, where the bombers are—around 30 or 35,000 feet.

"So, when we make that initial pass, we're going only about 50 or 60 miles faster than the 400-mile-an-hour B-29, and we catch one only over a long distance—which eats up fuel and takes us too far from base.

"Meanwhile, we're sitting back there like ducks in a shooting gallery for the bomber gunners to sharpen their marksmanship."

The pilots belittled the possibility that other countries may not have bombers capable of the high altitude flight and speed of the B-29.

Asserting that new model fighter planes now in the experimental stage are far superior to the "Shooting Star," Gen. George C. Kenney, chief of the air force strategic command, said that the air force does not have the money to purchase them on a large scale.

Searchers Find Lost Child in Rattlesnake-Infested Country

GRAHAM, TEX. — Sandy-haired Bobby Brown, 2-year old son of a North Texas farm couple, was found scratched and bruised after being lost 24 hours in rattlesnake-infested ranch country.

Unclothed except for a T-shirt, the towheaded youngster was rescued by D. D. St. John, one of 300 searchers.

"Where are you going?" St John asked.

"Looking for my dog Shorty," replied the barefoot child.

The child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Houston Brown, said Shorty, a shaggy black and white dog, returned to their farm house "barking and howling."

"I guess he was trying to tell us where Bobby was," said Brown.

Bobby, youngest of eight children, was missed before noon.

Searchers on foot said they killed 12 rattlesnakes in brushland and mesquite flats while searching for the boy.

Six private planes took part in the search.

He had wandered eight miles from home.

Baby Sitters Draft Code For Parents to Follow

FORT WAYNE, IND.—The parent who "rates" with a teen-age baby sitter is usually one who lives up to seven qualifications.

That was one of the conclusions reached at a "baby sitters' clinic" sponsored by the College club here.

Teen-age participants in a panel discussion said parents should always leave soft drinks, cookies and magazines around for them to read during the evening.

Also important, they felt, was that the parents "have the situation well in hand, leave brief and complete instructions, leave a phone number, return when they promise, show appreciation of a job well done, and escort them home safely."

Uncle Sam Says

Do you know the best way to assure your children a fine education? Possibly right now you are picturing them in a college cap and gown. But you must realize these will represent the entire cost of a college education. You need not wait until they enter college to start paying for it. Start now on the safe, sure-saving way with U.S. Savings Bonds. In ten years you'll have $4 to spend for every $3 you put in. There are two automatic ways for the purchase of U.S. Savings Bonds, your firm's Payroll Savings Plan, or, if self-employed, your bank's Bond-a-Month Plan.

Old Letterdrops in Small Towns Are On Their Way Out

WASHINGTON. — The old-fashioned peekaboo letterdrop, a special joy of small town Americans, is on its way out. In its stead is coming a strictly modern device that takes half the fun out of mailing a letter.

This wouldn't have happened if Gilbert Stanley Underwood hadn't visited the Herkimer, N. Y., postoffice.

Underwood is chief architect for the public buildings administration, which designs and builds federal buildings, including postoffices. He gave a reporter this description of what went on at Herkimer:

"The mail had just arrived, and the clerks had started to sort it. Many townspeople were waiting to get the mail from their boxes.

"Everyone seemed to know everyone else. They seemed to know the clerks, too. For one man after another would step up to the letterdrop, push back the flap, peek through, recognize the pants of the nearest clerk and say:

"Hey, Joe, give me my mail—I'm in a hurry."

"I never imagined the letterdrop would be put to such use," Underwood said in amazement.

So back in Washington, Underwood designed a letterdrop so cunningly beveled on the inside as to cut off the view entirely.

And no letter can overshoot the mail box, no matter how hard it is popped into the slot. Each letter just slides upward over the beveled surface, kerplunk into the container.

You'll find nonpeek letterdrops in all new postoffices, and Underwood said they'll gradually replace the old slots in the other buildings.

The Herkimer letterdrop?

It's still there, but the clerks have covered it with canvas—to prevent loafing and to keep letters from sailing through the air.

Risky to Sit with Driver

Safest position in a car is in the driver's seat behind the protection of the steering wheel, and the most dangerous seat is the one next to the driver, according to Dr. Claire L. Straith, chief of plastic surgery at Harper hospital, Detroit. He stated in a report in the American Medical association journal that in a study of 50 patients who suffered facial injuries in automobile accidents 70 per cent of the patients were young women who had been sitting next to the driver. More than half of those front seat patients suffered head and face injuries.

Tahitian Chief Can't See Why People Live in America

ST. LOUIS. — Tahiti is still the paradise it always has been, and Chief Charlie Maau of the Pacific island can't see why anyone would want to live in the United States.

"Politics? United Nations? We cannot worry about such things," the six-foot, two-inch islander said in halting English.

Then he gave his philosophy for happiness:

"Plant more, I tell my people, love more, and have more fun."

Charlie says it works.

"Swimming and outrigger canoeing and fishing; there is plenty for everybody," he said happily.

When asked if the Tahitian natives really were saronga, Charlie said, "Oh, I put on sandals and the women wear dresses when we go to the city of Papette, but otherwise one wears only a sarong. Why more?"

Charlie, whose real name is Arouteira Teratahi, admitted he liked the United States.

He said, "I like your ice cream and your buildings. And your girls are very nice. Dorothy Lamour is very nice, and Rita Hayworth — ah!"

IN MEMORIAM:

GOWIN— In loving memory of our mother and grandmother, Mrs. Ellen Ora Gowin, who died 7 years ago October 1, 1941.

Gone dear mother, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face;
But you left us to remember,
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet tis memory still;
But death has left a lonliness,

Hogs Adopt 'New Look'; They're Thinner and Longer

LANSING, MICH. — It shouldn't happen to a hog.

But the fashionable, modern model hog is coming out with an entirely "new look."

Falling in line with ordinary human beings, this year's crop of hogs will be longer and thinner than the war models.

Naturally the hogs have nothing to do with it.

According to W. N. McMillen, swine specialist at Michigan State college, hogs which the meat packers and pork producers want vary with the public demand and the need for lard.

During the war there was a tendency to produce short thick hogs to meet the public demand and the demands from government for lard.

Swine authorities now claim the trend is swinging to a longer hog with less fat, which makes for more plates of bacon, loins, chops and hams.

"Stylish stout" hogs won't stand a chance of copping a blue ribbon at the county fairs, McMillen said. "Hogs with the classiest chassis will have the appearance of a well-fed Greyhound," he added.

Mother, 38, Bears Her 22nd Child in Atlanta Hospital

ATLANTA, GA. — A 38-year-old Atlanta woman proudly exhibited her 22nd child in an Atlanta hospital.

Mrs. Maude Ethel Pope named the new baby, a boy, Daniel Martin Pope after the attending physician.

She says this is her last child, explaining:

"Twenty-two children for a 38-year-old woman is enough."

Mrs. Pope said "about 10" of her 22 children are still living.

Mrs. Pope made news when she went to the city hospital for "treatment." She told doctors she had been working too hard digging a well at her house.

It developed that Mrs. Pope not only dug a well but built "enough of a house for us to live in." She commented from her hospital bed:

"As soon as I'm able to get up and about, I'm going to finish the house."

U. S. Farm Workers

U. S. land army of farmers, working members of their families, and hired helpers totaled 10,368,000 on May 1, 1948. Total U. S. population is now about 140 million, so each farm worker must feed himself and 12 other U. S. residents before having any surplus for export. The number of farm workers on May 1 was about 100,000 greater than on the same date in 1947.

British Mother, 101, Summons Son, 73, With Bugle Calls

LONDON.—Although it was her birthday, Mrs. Ellen Walker, who keeps house for her bachelor son at their cottage in the Yorkshire village of Bretton, was busy as usual wringing out newly washed curtains.

"I think it is time I had some help," she said. For Mrs. Walker is 101 years old. Her son is 73.

Every day she stands at the cottage door and summons her son from his vegetable garden to his midday meal. She uses a miniature bugle.

"At one time," Mrs. Walker said, "I could blow a full-sized army bugle but I haven't enough puff these days."

Since she took an automobile trip to London two years ago, Mrs. Walker has had a hankering for an airplane flight. She has eight children, 16 grandchildren, 40 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren.

Traveling Zoo Brings Animals To All Children

CLEVELAND.—"Hey, ma, guess what. I just petted a skunk!" In most places that admission would cause anything from inflated nostrils to screams of horror, but in Cleveland, mother just says, "Oh, that's nice. The traveling zoo is around again."

The traveling zoo is one of three mobile entertainment units that cruise the city's streets. They bring a museum, a vaudeville show and a zoo to people who otherwise might never see the real thing.

The oldest of the three, the traveling zoo, first took to the road in 1942. The recreation division of the board of education, realizing that the park zoo is inaccessible to many people, decided to bring a capsule-sized animal collection to the people's doors.

They built a gay little jeep-pulled trailer with bright colored animals painted on it. It is equipped with cages for about a dozen small and relatively tame animals. A schedule of stops at playgrounds and parks was arranged. The sponsors fixed up a public address system, and got a lecturer to talk about the specimens. The zoo makes four stops a day, five days a week. During its season, 100,000 people see it.

Youngsters Talks.

The crowd of youngsters, liberally sprinkled with adults, hears a 45 minute talk, consisting of stories and facts about the animals.

Then some of the exhibits are brought into a roped off "petting pen," where the youngsters are allowed to play with them. The zoo now is carrying an opossum, raccoon, duck, horned owl, skunk, goat, bantam rooster, armadillo, fox, hawk, rabbit, monkey and some turtles.

Of this crew, the fox has become the show trooper. He is a great ham, thriving on attention. He sits up and practically "mugs" at the throngs of excited children who crowd around him.

The Showagon, another traveling unit, played to its first audience in 1944. Also unique in this city, it gives five evening shows a week to an average crowd of 3,000. During its season, 150,000 people flock around the brightly painted truck, which opens up to an 18-foot-square stage.

Local Talent.

The talent is recruited through a series of auditions, held in the city's huge public auditorium. Most of the acts—singers, dancers, mimics, magicians — are teen-agers, although there is no age limit. They serve without pay, but are eager to hitch their star to the Showagon. Many of the acts have gone on to professional careers.

After the vaudeville show, the street is roped off and the band plays on for street dancing. A Showagon visit is a high spot in every neighborhood, and the idea has been borrowed this year in Denver, Colo., and Cincinnati, Ohio.

The "portable museum" is a huge trailer, which had been used during field expeditions out west. Visiting hospitals, orphanages, schools, homes for the aged and other institutions, it has attracted more than 100,000 people in the less than a year it has been touring.

Approximately 50,000,000 letters are received by newspaper editors every year from readers.

Even a Hindu Fakir Would Be Uncomfortable in This Bed

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—How would you like to sleep on a mattress stuffed with cigarette and chewing gum wrappers, milk bottle caps, nails, match boxes, wires, nuts and bolts?

That, said Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, is what a Cincinnati woman found in her infant daughter's new mattress after she became ill from wire jabs.

The governor was shown the mattress stuffing by W. J. Rogers, state director of industrial relations, who called for strengthening of the Ohio bedding inspection law.

The manufacturer of the mattress said it had been made by disgruntled employees.
